Show Some Love to Our Planet on Earth Day

Each year, Earth Day—April 22—marks the anniversary of the birth of the modern environmental movement in 1970.

The idea for a national day to focus on the environment came to Earth Day founder Gaylord Nelson, then a U.S. Senator from Wisconsin, after witnessing the ravages of the 1969 massive oil spill in Santa Barbara, California. Inspired by the student anti-war movement, he realized that if he could infuse that energy with an emerging public consciousness about air and water pollution, it would force environmental protection onto the national political agenda.

With 5,000 environmental groups in a record 184 countries reaching out to hundreds of millions of people, Earth Day 2000 combined the big-picture feistiness of the first Earth Day with the international grassroots activism of Earth Day 1990. Earth Day 2000 sent world leaders the loud and clear message that citizens around the world wanted quick and decisive action on global warming and clean energy.

Today, the fight for a clean environment continues with increasing urgency, as the ravages of climate change become more manifest every day. We invite you to be a part of Earth Day and help write many more chapters—both struggles and victories—into the Earth Day book, where history is still in the making.

Green Living Tip

If your hairbrush is made of plastic with synthetic bristles, there is an easy way to make a greener choice in your grooming tools. There are a variety of natural material brushes on the market. To find the most environmentally friendly, first look for a wooden handle. Many natural hairbrushes are made from boar bristles. These bristles are actually preferred by hair stylists, as they evenly distribute the natural oils in your hair, making it shinier and more manageable. If you want to avoid animal products, look for recycled-product bristles.

Reduce . Reuse . Recycle.

April is National Garden Month

Growing tired of winter yet? April's National Garden Month is the right time to get outside and enjoy Mother Nature's colorful antidote to cabin fever. Getting dirty in the garden and watching new life form before your eyes brings a special kind of joy that's you can't really experience through any other activity.

Plus our bodies produce Vitamin D as a response to sunlight, so being out in the garden means getting some good stuff flowing through your system. Vitamin D has several health benefits like helping with weight loss and bone development. Translation: gardening is good for your health!
